

Practical - (6)

Horticulture

- Horticulture is the branch of plant agriculture dealing with garden crops, generally fruits, vegetables and ornamental plants.
- The word is derived from the Latin hortus, 'garden' and colere, 'to cultivate'.
- Horticulture is divided into the pomology and olericulture and floriculture and landscape horticulture.
- Pomology - fruits and nut crops.
- Olericulture - herbaceous plants for kitchen, for example - carrots and tomatoes, etc.
- Floriculture - the production of flowers and ornamental plants.
- Landscape horticulture - a broad category that includes plants for landscape.

Importance of horticulture

- Horticulture enriches diets, growing fruits and vegetables provide critical nutrients for balanced diet.
- Horticulture increases incomes, farmers growing high-value crops such as fruits, vegetables, flowers.

Benefits of horticulture

- Horticulture and plants can benefit individuals and families by supporting health and well-being.
- Gardening provides a source of physical exercise.
- Provides nutritious food.
- It is relaxing and provides stress relief and restoration.

- Horticulture also benefits the urban environment by decreasing urban temperatures, pollution, nutrient cycling supporting wildlife, biodiversity preservation and enabling habitat restoration
- It improves your outdoor surroundings
- It prevents flooding and increases water conservation
- It helps decrease CO₂ emissions
- It allows you to decrease the amount of chemicals used in natural environment
- It enhances natural environments for animals and helpful insects.

En